Sabbatical Year 1983-4

Aug 8/83 Our last day of preparations was certainly very full. Penelope & Colin came up for a last visit and to bring the garments P. had lengthened. Somehow everything went into the suitcases and I even had the satisfaction of seeing our bedroom and my study tidy as I finished packing. Mike, James, & Mary were most helpful all day & took us to the airport in a most terrific downpour. Elizabeth & Ron came to the airport too so they all gave us a good send-off. Very nice to have, as we set off, after feeling very tired & hurried after the preceding six months.

Aug 9/83 Prince Andrew was indeed on our plane last night which explained the very thorough luggage search at Malton. Trip a bit rough last night after the electrical storms. A full plane meant it took a long while to get our luggage at Heathrow & set off for the hotel on a wet & rainy a.m. They lawns suggest their summer has been like ours! Hot, dry one. Explored our area & rested up the rest of the day, staying at the Royal National Hotel off Woburn, a good deal we got by buying our tickets from British Airways at the Malton station nearby! Met 2 Australians

Aug 10/83

Did a good deal of walking today and really got the feel of London streets. Got tickets for our two plays & enjoyed a light lunch & a pub-Dinner at a tiny Indian restaurant on the quaintest English lane where W.B. Yeats once lived.

Aug 11/83 Made a trip (on foot) to St. Mary le Bow and found my way around alone quite well. Had a sandwich lunch in Bow square outside. Tube back to Tottenham Court Rd. & the BUM where Fred & I looked around a bit. The play Beethoven's Tenth at the Vaudeville theatre was extremely good - funny, well played, thought provoking.

Aug 12/83 Today I had better luck at St. Mary le Bow. Gus Wiegand was there & is going to research Gatteley & Pattison for me. It is the Tercentenary of the church so there is a very interesting picture display up. Hope I got some good pictures. Pirates of Penzance at the Drury Lane theatre was lots of fun tonight It was the American version so really boisterous & hilarious. Little Mabel was the sweetest thing with a lovely voice. Lots of photography today.

Aug 13/83 Went out to Kew Gardens today as we really feel the need to see some flowers in this hurried flowerless summer of ours. One could roam endlessly in this vast lovely park - saw the roses, rock garden, and the grasses area. Returned to the museum and photographed in the Mausoleum Room this time. Tried out a nice Greek restaurant where we met the usual Greek hospitality.

Aug-14/83 Went to St. Pancras Church this am. where there was a real welcome for those from "Overseas". Went to their breakfast afterwards & were very nicely treated. The church bldg. is fascinating with its combination of architectural detail from the Erechtheum, Tower of the Winds etc. Organized & packed our luggage to take to Victoria Station to check through to Rouen then met Julie & Charlie for dinner & had a lovely visit with them. Quite funny finding their B & B place afterwards. Certainly feel sad that this is our last night in London - the time has gone so quickly.

London - Newhaven - Dieppe - Rouen

Aug 15/83 Early rising, bed with continental b'fast in our room, in order to catch the train to Newhaven. Very pleasant to ride through England's "green & pleasant land" again. Channel crossing uneventful but as we sat on the train at Dieppe there was a remarkable parade went by to mark the Assumption? National holiday. Were fascinated to see how many old half timber bldgs there are here, as well as cathedral & church so plan to come for longer in Feb.

Woke in good time in our corner room of the Astrid Hotel in its busy, noisy location across from the station. After a pleasant continental breakfast on the ground floor we got our mail weighed & sent off at the P.T.T. Train ride in to Paris fast & pleasant & there we collected our 3 pieces of checked luggage. Pretty tired when it was all loaded up, so wisely sat down & have lunch in the station. Taxi next to Budget rent-a-car, a partially successful shopping trip & visit to American Express & then we set off on the Périphique & the Autoroute du Nord for Compiègne & our week in n.e. France. Met Joan of Arc here again so we should have a great time,

Had a most enjoyable, satisfactory day. Found a splendid store across the bridge for fruit, veg. & cheese & a splendid boulangerie so now we can have economical lunches at last. Numerous enquiries finally brought us to a store in Beauvais where we got our 2 burner Gaz stove. Such a relief to get it!

The cathedrale S. Pierre very special inside with lovely stained-glass windows & e. end the highest choir ever built. The flying buttresses needed outside very complicated & the piers immense in places. Paid a quick visit to S. Etienne also whose stone seemed not to have stood up very well.

On then to Amiens where the Cath. N. Dame is the most perfect Gothic church & the largest in France. It has very moving plaques to the allies (New Zealand, Australia, Gt. Britain etc) who helped liberate Amiens & France in W.W.#. Numerous dates - 155?, 156?, 157? can be seen on the vaults telling when each was done. Interesting help from several people when my coins would not work at a public toilet.

Had a last shopping & photographing trip in Compiègne before heading eastward. Stopped first at Clairière de l'Armistice, the spot where the Germans surrendered to the French in W.W.I. With railway car, broken & mended plaque, 2 railway lines, statue of Foch & French cenotaph it was a most moving spot, but set in the most beautiful tree-surrounded area. Everyone should see this place! Drove through a bit of the Forêt de Compiègne. Met Joan of Arc again at Rheims where beautiful sun should have given lovely pictures inside & out. Brief stop at Soissons before Rheims. Through Chalon & on to Troyes where we have a lovely big room in the Hotel de France.

Started today with a nice petit déjeuner at the hotel and then a fascinating trip to the market where French politesse was very evident. Another lovely drive through the rich farmland of this area before we arrived at the Cisterdian Abbey church at Pontigny. Most interesting to see that it was built when Romanesque was giving way to Gothic - round arches at the bottom but pointed in upper levels. See booklet on Pontigny.

On to Sens the ~~first~~ oldest Gothic ~~church~~ cathedral but again there were numerous round arches too.

In some ways the biggest thrill came at the end of the day when we went to see Troyes. Cath. The windows in 3½ levels at the apse end were breathtakingly beautiful. The same window area in stained glass extended all around the choir & this church has so many st. gl. windows & is really overwhelming. Hope to go there on Sunday.

Quite a lot of driving today, to go to Dijon + back, so did not stop to see the Vix Crater in Chatillon-sur-Seine but drove through on our way to Fonteney. Had a guided tour of the Abby at F. by a young Frenchman who explained everything. He was not really as good as the booklet. In Dijon we saw the Cath. inside + outside - + under it the fascinating crypt of the earlier Romanesque rotonda type church. This was quite moving. Next saw the dortoir (now a musée) + then went along the Rue des Forges where there were several mediaeval town houses (very good condition). Had previously seen the Eglise Notre Dame - peculiar style on facade but very nice inside. Were pleased to locate the Puit de Moise with the sculpture Chartreuse by Sluter over it. An important piece now surrounded by psychiatric wards

Began today by looking around the area to the east of the cathedral where there are alot of very old half timber houses, some starting to collapse from neglect. Went to church at the cathedral which was a challenging experience both the service in French & us with no service books. However a couple of hymns were to tunes we know well and the singing was lovely with the great organ to accompany us. It was fairly easy to follow the sermon as the priest spoke in French quite slowly. All the while there were those lovely windows (celestial sparkles punctuating the blue heavens?) ahead of us with no reredos or sanctuary wall to obstruct the view. We really felt we had been to church when we came out with the many other people at the service. After church took a walk around the Old Quarter, south of the river, where the old houses are well preserved & used in numerous ways.

In the afternoon a drive to Colombey les 2 églises to see the huge Cross of Lorraine & de Gaulle's burial place. Very moving indeed to see both the tributes in the cemetery & the many others making a visit.

On to Vezelay where the plain Romanesque church with its original wood roof was a real find. Very damp as ground level has risen. Lovely hotel dinner & end of stay at Troyes.

Were sorry to leave the lovely large nest we had at Troyes and have to move on. Covered alot of miles today on our way to Strasbourg. The most interesting part was finding the "voie romaine" near Raon sur Plaine. Having gone ca 1-2 km along the route indicated we met a sign saying the route was barré. Left the car & started to walk up the sloping roadway expecting to find the voie romaine at any moment. Some sort of inner compulsion kept us going even though it was raining. After alot of walking we were on the point of giving up about three times when continuing to "one more bend" brought us to a very well preserved stretch of Roman road running through a beautiful evergreen forest at the top of the ridge we had been climbing. The sun started to come out! Felt as though we had found "the secret of the mountain". A bit hectic driving to our hotel the Harmony but we made it!

Aug 23/83 Strasbourg - Karlsruhe - Stuttgart - Augsburg - Munich

Got ourselves out of the hotel fairly quickly but were mystified on reaching the station (Gare SNCF) about what to do with the car, where to return the car, what to do with our checked luggage. It all turned out & we were able to move the car from rendezvous parking to the Budget car return at one end of the station & take our luggage from it with a "porter" to the consigne area. Train ride was pleasant & we had a nice lunch in a real dining car. Luggage did not arrive on our train so we had to take it to the hotel without it. Oliver was there to meet us & told us of a good restaurant nearby. We needed it!!

Took our time this a.m. to make breakfast at the hüches and wake up gradually after an excellent sleep in this quiet neighborhood. Fred got the bus & subway figured out beautifully & we got safely to the Glyptothek. Very much enjoyed photographing the above sculpture before & after a very nice lunch eaten outside. Another supper at the Donna Rosa restaurant across from the h's street & then home to pack for the trip to Berlin tomorrow.

83.3.35 & 36 Outside an underground station.
Taxi took us to the airport where they insisted our film & all cameras must go through the X-ray machine. Couldn't argue when there were soldiers standing there with machine guns! It rather spoiled our flight but everyone else has been very nice especially the housekeeper at Reisius House where we are staying at the German Archaeological Institute. We have really luxurious quarters & made ourselves a nice supper.

Aug 26/83 Berlin

It was lovely to meet Elizabeth Alford at breakfast this a.m. had a good chat which helped make up for the small continental breakfast. Went first to the German Archaeological Institut where Frau Krug very kindly showed us all around the library (a wonderful one) and then took us to main bldg. to meet Dr. Peschlau who was also most hospitable and helpful. Went on to the nearby Prussian Cultural museum in Dahlem where we had a very nice much needed lunch in the cafeteria and then went to see a very interesting exhibition of Irish art including the Book of Kells. Tea at the Institute quadrangle, Pausanias in the library, shopping, supper here & our day is done.

Made our first trip to East Berlin through the long wait at the passport control section of the dirty dreary looking Friedrichstrasse underground station and to the uninviting looking Pergamon Museum. It was lunch time by then so we went to the cafeteria for a so-so meal in the unenspiring atmosphere there. However we were delighted to find several new ~~ex~~ sculpture galleries open since last summer, the architecture as exciting as before, the Altar as overwhelming as before and moles of people there to see the exhibits.

Aug 28/83 Berlin

Spent a good deal of the day at the library, reading for one thing about the Tombs of Sts. Peter + Paul. Took Elizabeth to dinner at a nearby Italian restaurant and heard more of her experiences here during the war. She really should write memoirs!

Aug 29/83 East Berlin

This was our first visit to Dr. Kestner at the Pergamon Mus. where a passport is required for an entry pass. Dr. K. was a young, very polite English speaking ~~East~~ East German who showed us the store rooms - lots of material all in very dusty condition. A very interesting extra of meeting him was that he took us through a number of streets to find a restaurant and explained past + recent history of the area. So we discovered close to the P. Mus. the new Museum a ruined shell from the war, lots of new modern buildings, people traffic + restaurants but few stores. Photographed in 2 store rooms in p.m.

Aug. 30/83 East Berlin

Photographed the remaining 3 galleries in the Berg. Mus. + took Mr. + Mrs. Kestner to lunch this time. She speaks English very well + is expecting. But the thought of how they are working in such isolation, cut off from their field + others in it is very sad.

Packed up this a.m. and regretfully said Goodbye to everyone at Hepsuis Gästhaus. Went to the Antiken Sammlung Museum which had a very interesting number of things which ended there because of being taken from ~~East Berlin~~ the German State ~~museum~~ Museums in now East Berlin for storage during the rear in territory which came under West Berlin. Gold items, jewellery & Hildesheim silver hoard were wonderful. Fred wanted to photograph stuccos from Brühl so we had a nice visit with Dr. Heilmeier.

A very nice outdoor lunch outdoors followed & then we headed for the train which took us to Braunschweig, followed by a short further train ride to Wolfsburgh. The first train ride was quite something with police on board, barbed wired stations, police dogs a couple of times in view, the countryside looking very unproductive depressing & not even inhabited; when we got to the "no man's land" between East & West Germany the fences, walls, towers etc were horrifying. Less than a mile later we hit the first W. German town which was really electrifying it was so bright, new, well-kept, alive with people & cars, flowered and a boy with a drink' cart & music was on the platform. We certainly saw the difference between the two worlds. Found our hotel O.K. at Wolfsburgh & had a good shower & washed away the Communist World!

Had a lovely help yourself breakfast at the Goya hotel before we took a cab to the Volkswagen plant to get our new Jetta. A complimentary snack in their cafeteria while we waited made a very good impression after we had introduced ourselves. When Mr. Britza called us and explained all about the papers for the car we were very very impressed with V.'s thoroughness - they gave the impression they really cared about their customers. A bit of a nerve strain to start off but Fred soon had the hang - after shopping & lunch, we were off for Hildesheim, an interesting Romanesque church founded in 1022. The old town was very pretty with the half timber bldgs. painted in bright colours as is done in other towns we saw this aft. In a way the most impressive part of the day was driving close to the E-W Germ. frontier especially at Bad Sooden allendorf where we could see the hated fence, barbed wire, bare area beside it as the frontier line seemed to go right through the town making 2 parts of it. We had come off the autostrada near Göttingen after a big truck rig cut us off in passing another rig, so we stayed on the red road close to the frontier (which was very) to Bad Hersfeld. We found a gästhaus & a lovely hotel down of Chickens as a hotel where a number of people were having a lovely time dancing & singing to German music.

Sept 2/83 Bar Hersfeld to Munich

Had a nice German breakfast (but smaller than yesterday's) at another building of our gästhaus set-up and then set off in Magda as she is now to be called. Headed for Fulda where we found the Cathedral (Ded. to St. Boniface) after some searching. The original church has been rebuilt in a later style (but arches round) but under the apse is the chapel & altar of St. Boniface and nearby a museum with pieces from the earlier church and reliquaries containing the skulls of the three saints connected with the church, Boniface (who was an Englishman), Sturmius and Hioba. A great many children were there today too. Decided to try the autobahn again which was much better today & had no difficulty following the route around Munich & in to the Hücke's. But they are on holiday with Oliver so we are here alone. A real disappointment.

Completed packing up all our belongings at the Kuches' house and left regretfully - so strange to have stayed twice at their home & never seen them! Quite cloudy & sometimes raining to start today, but even that did not spoil the beautiful, lush green idyllic pastoral scenery approaching & going throw the Alps. It got more & more beautiful as the clouds blew away, the mountains got higher, the smooth green used stretches of mountain side continued. We were actually going through the Austrian Tirol where the alpine valleys were as enchanting as any fairy tale.

In the area before Bolzano vines grow extensively & between Bolzano & Trento the whole valley is planted with fruit trees. It has been a spectacular day & we are very comfortable at the Trento Agyp.

Today was a very successful day & one full of surprises. Drove S. through the impressive mountains with valley full of fruit trees till they ended shortly before we came in to Verona where we saw San Zeno in some detail - worthy to crypt however. See picture book bought. After eating lunch moved car near the arena, which we walked around & then headed for old part of the city & saw many of the bldgs shown in the picture book, including the Casa di Giulietta. Big surprise to find she was real! At the cathedral of Santa Maria Matricolare we found numerous ancient blocks below its walls & apse which may explain the connection with a Roman temple. Saw some of the X mosaics which must explain there being a pre-existing early X basilica on the spot. Saw San Zeno from the outside where there was a Benedictine monastery built where St. Zeno & Rustico were martyred. The drive up west side of L. Garda was a great surprise. Thronged with holidayers at the bottom end but more & more spectacular as we got more to the north - it became really mountainous & the road went through alot of tunnels

Set off for Milan in some trepidation as I knew the traffic would be terrible & was, both with "poids lourds" on the 2 autostradas and city traffic on unfamiliar streets. But we managed beautifully - did not get lost + got in + out of Milan quite smoothly. I enjoyed seeing all the places pictured very much + have a clearer feeling for Milan now. How the Last Supper & Crucifixion paintings ~~the~~ in the refectory + the V A.D. Mosaic in S. Ambrogio survived when the bldgs. were so damaged by bombing is a miracle. S. Ambrogio the most interesting with its atrium, gallery for the women, bodies of S. Am., Gervasius + Protasius in the crypt and the museum with very early & fabrics, and frags. from the Early & basilica on the site. Ended the day with a nice Agyp dinner!

Another of those lovely new Agyp breakfasts before we left for Brescia. Got our reserv. made for the ferry El Greco from Ancona on Sat + then set out to see Brescia. Started with la piazza della Loggia, found the Capitolium and the 2 Duomi and then sat down for a pizza lunch. Was much disturbed to see a very thin boy selling roses and not having much luck. Early X museum was closed but we did find S. Maria in Solario where old Roman blocks were used for lower part of the wall flush with the street. The little chiesetta was a jewel. Staying at Verona Agyp tonight to be ready for Magda's 1st check-up tomorrow.

The memorial Shrine was quite a find. It was a long drive to Ancona after we collected Magda but we made it O.K. and felt refreshed after a good dinner at the Ancona Agip.

Had a leisurely a.m. at the Ancona Agyp & washed my hair while Fred got all our papers arranged for boarding the ferry El Greco tonight.

Then we went up the coast to Fano and walked around in a leisurely manner to see their interesting old buildings.

A long wait in line to get on the El Greco but eventually all the cars & huge transports were on & we set off just as we were having a nice dinner in the dining-room. A bit late retiring with one thing & another such as moving our clocks ahead one hour to Greek time. Our table companions were a very lively Greek who talked alot & a quiet Italian who bought a bottle of Chianti for all of us.

We had a lovely leisurely day on the El Greco. Only thing I accomplished was writing to Mr. Bullock about the history of the loghouse at Gravenhurst & to Harold Rose so he can do a "profile" of Madge for the St. James quarterly newsletter. These should both give Madge quite a lift.

Had lunch in the dining-room - a lovely meal with numerous courses & a good supper in the Self Serve.

Got off the El Greco at Igoumenitsa O.K. were greeted kindly by the Customs Officials are now installed in a hotel by the harbour.

Got a hotel room looking over this harbour so we have a wonderful view of this teeming, bustling, interesting holiday centre. Located various monuments - history of Ss Jason & Sosipater very interesting. Guard told us the early X basilica had Gk & Roman remains under it. Site of Gorgon Temple not memorable as there are only a few blocks in a field. Did up the Analypsies pensively pretty thoroughly. Pretty tired so likely off to bed early.

We both feel (as we near Athens & the end of our travels) that these fine plus weeks of voyaging & sight seeing have gone very well indeed.

Sept. 15/83 Corinth to Athens

Today we reached Athens! Seemed like a very hazy day as we drove in from Corinth but actually was a good summer day for Athens we realized as we made our way through the very heavy morning traffic into Athens. The first person we met was Judith! Who was delighted with the picture of Mike which I brought! We were delighted to find that we are to have the "Deacon's Megaron" above the boring salone this year - a very attractive living room with a frig., a bathroom & a nice bedroom. We are so pleased. Went down to Kolonaki to read the mail & have lunch - a real School beginning. Got all our stuff neatly stowed away & then went for a first Portofino Pizza. It has all been a very good beginning!

First Peloponnesus Trip

Sept. 23/83 Athens - Paralia Tyrou

Our printed material for the trip was ready yesterday so it was clothes + food that had to be packed up this a.m. after Fred + I had a lovely time shopping at the market. Driving through the Athens traffic at noon was horrendous but we survived + lovely to pass Akrocorinth + Mycenae + the orchards of the Argive plain. Searched around considerably at ~~the~~ Argos for the basilica but no luck. Then down the spectacular west side of the Argolic Gulf to Παραλία Τύρου and the same Apollo Hotel where we stayed before. The water is so clear + it is lovely to be right beside the sea.

This was a very enjoyable, very rewarding day which taught us much more familiar with the Thyreatic Plain.

Started by driving down the coast to Paralia Ag. Andreas where we set out to follow the city wall at one corner of wh. is the mod. Par. Andreas. It was my first real wall circuit examination with Fred & I began to see the very real thrill to this subject as we found most of the wall circuit & towers, cut in a couple of diff. styles of huge blocks, and a little church in the keep at the top of the hill. At the far seaward end several peasants had constructed their houses right on the wall line. The other end of the enceinte gets mixed up with the houses of the paralia in a most interesting way.

Next climb was up the Ag. Petros hill where there is another church with num. fascia-bits built into it & a Venetian fort. Was surprised & fascinated to see the first cyclamens today. Lovely! Nb. Pornon is above several villages in this valley but on the astros - Skopelos road you do not see it till past Paralia.

Had a lovely visit at the Mavi Monkon where we noted all the anc. reste around, inside & in the fabric of the church. Amun was most kind to us & had us served coffee, bread, water, ouzo & lookoomias free!

Ended the day with a dip in the sea

This really was a day as we attempted to find the Anygreia on Mt. Zavitsa. Started up near n. end of new Paralia Rd where the path was so good we thought we might be on it. That one came to an end but we soon found another good one which went on & on, at the bottom of some high dissolving cliffs, across a ravine & past a couple of farming hamlets with terrific threshing floors - always upward - till at a high point where we could see into a back valley, which stretches up from Χρυσηγάδι we came to an agrotic road which we followed to the top. Wondered if this were Anygreia turned into a farm road recently but could not be sure. Started down the s. side of the e. shoulder of the mt. we were on & with considerable care & time made it to the bottom. Had a good meal at Par. Astras & then a swim.

Today worked out beautifully too. After leaving Par. Jérou went to Astros & up the valley to Hellenico, a wonderful city, site to fortify. Followed the walls all around and was once again much impressed with Hadj's specialty. The scenery was stupendous - we could see such a fantastic amount as we went higher & higher on our way to Aq. Petros, Mt. Melgou & Aq. Ioannes just cleing to their hills. To our great surprise the last few miles before Aq. Petros are now asphalt! An easy run at the last. Hadj's final triumph was driving from Aq. Petros to Karies which was def. agotic but not bad. Came on to Sparta, bought baclava to celebrate & are at the Apollo Hotel again.

To our surprise the apse end, which has been excavated, was across the road & a short way into the field from Ag. Athenasios of last year's acquaintance. Cust. told us there was a T of Ares near or on site of basilica & best pieces are in Mus. in Sparta. H's ref. says there were 2 bldg stages with chancel screen footings belonging to first part. Lunch near churches of med. castro & then on to Molái (through Alepohori, Ag. Dim. Nata, Apidia), where we turned east for Geraka & Hiparissi. Rd. is being improved but still so rough it was taking till late in the day. Turned back to stay in Monemvasia & will try to do both places tomorrow.

But Zarax a spectacular site again with lots of towers + walls + a basilica. A beautiful ferry came into the fjord + was a real thrill. The drive to Kiparissi was very long, rough, narrow + terrifying in spots. But trucks + buses were going over it. Kiparissi was a very pretty well kept town + we plan to come again but by ship (not over that awful road!). Nearly three hours to get home + eat out to dinner to treat ourselves after so much nerve strain.

Place Names from 1st Peloponnesus trip

Paralia of Iros - anc. Iros - walled city above
Paralia of Ag. Andrisi - Tisi Hill with chapel of Ag. And. - perhaps site of anc. Anthene
Hill with chapel of Agios Petros (Kastraki Hill)
- identified by Pritchett with anc. Thyrea
Astros - Meligou, formerly the Kalyvia of
Ag. Dimitris of Meligou (now Orini Meligou)
No ancient remains reported Paralia of Astros (formerly Astros) - has remains of anc. walls n. of med. fortress & is thought to be the Aeginetan coastal settlement described by Thucydides
Moni Koutsou - occupies the site of an anc.
Asclepieion which has been identified for no particular reason with the Sanctuary of Polyneocretes at Eva
(in Greek Evas). If this is correct Eva must have been near the monastery site. A villa of Herodes
Atticus is attested by inscriptions.
Elliniko - fortified hilltop above Astros
Meligou road. Tile-stamps (?)
discovered here shows that it was the site of Eva in classical times. Part of walls at least must be Hellenistic Karies (formerly Arachova) - a leading candidate for ancient Karyai
(anc. site is outside village to n.)

Gerakí - mod town occupies slopes of anc. + earlier Med. Gerginthrae. The later Med. castle of Gerakí was built by the Franks on a hilltop a mile or more to the east. No anc. remains on castle site.

Monemvasia - entirely Byzantine. The rock is no doubt the Cape Minoa of Pausanias

Gerakas - its limani is the site of anc. Zarax (fortified hilltop). Ruinoes in Pausanias' day, but obviously occupied in early times

Kiparissi - its paralia is overlooked by the anc. castro which was probably the site of Kyphanta (in ruins in Paus.' day)

Kamaras - still perhaps the most likely site for Paus.' Glyppia. Anc. remains have been found on the hill of Agios Elías above town.

Leonídi - no anc. remains but the anc. hill site on the coast above its Plaka is the most probable location Brasiai or Prasiai, mentioned by Paus., as the most southerly town of the Free Laconians on the east coast of the Parnon Malea chain.

Our last day was the fullest in some ways and certainly the most tiring. Kept to asphalt as far as Geraki in order to cut down on dust + bumps and in order to see some new territory. The road to Kosmas + Elona was not nearly as good as the Michelin indicated - ran into incredible narrow winding roads again plus sections which were laying torked on. There was one area which had been widened + asphalted a short while ago and which was not yet stable - rock slides + collapsed edges fairly frequent. The Moni Elona very diff. from Loukou + perched on a small cliff edge. Kosmas was a nice village. Last stretches to Leonidi very spectacular. But today's driving was very tiring.

Today was a good day!! Very glad we went to the Saloniki Museum where we saw the Vergina treasures again plus material (beautiful & interesting) from other rich tombs. Also of driving today so we had the Greek tapes on

Biggest excitement was going to Philippi where the churches were a highlight. Basilica A had so many pieces remaining around the very clear outline of the church. Altar piers, chancel screen, impost blocks, chancel outline, ambo - it was really great. Took alot of details of both A+B See Kristen Kreicher where the story is diff- Whereas Bas A likely destroyed in an earthquake & run-off from the steep akropolis buried it, Basilica B was very adventurous with 2 domes which collapsed! Not so many pieces to see but later apse built in the nave to create a much smaller church is quite visible. Went to the Museum where an amiable guard showed us the altar? screen? pieces from the Octagon Bas. - will have to photograph them someday. Staying at Egnatia Hotel tonight in a B class room with cold drinks in the frig, hot water & lots of space

First thing today we found the Kavalla Mus. down on the waterfront. Several restored Ionic caps. there and a very inf. photographic history of Kavalla. Hub photographed a couple of Early X caps. outside which the guard said were chance finds, provenance unknown but not Philippi. Walk up the Castro Hill, the orig. site of Neapolis, renamed Christoupolis in Byz. times - looked at the excavated portion of the city.

The number of sugar beets going to the factory at Komotini was quite something - this sugar business has only been going for 2 yrs.!

Of the Komotini Mus. a chancel screen piece, part of an ambo front? & X lamps which came from a nearby village, Outside in the garden were several other caps. with the + defaced in several cases.

Had a refreshment stop at the Xenia Hotel & then came to Alexandroupolis where we passed the campground where we stayed with Mike 3 times in '77-'78. Staying at the Galaxy Hotel tonight.

83.8.22 Alexandroupolis - fishing boats on city beach

Got up about 6:00 a.m (after a poor night's sleep due to endless street noise), made breakfast, and got ourselves organized & to the dock in time for possible ferry departure for Samothrace at 8:00 a.m. Discovered there was no ferry on Sun. so cannot go until tomorrow! Started out then to fill our nearly empty gas tank & found no one open. Finally learned there was no power in the city till 3:00 p.m. at which time the pumps would be able to pump gas again. In this unexpected period of leisure we did a bit of seaside walking, bought & wrote post-cards, drank coffee & talked to a nice Australian couple. With 3:00 p.m. gas we then went to the campground & set up our tent. Strange how much I enjoyed being a camper again & in the out-of-doors as the sun set & the waves pounded nearby. Just the thing to do on Canadian Thanksgiving and really made me feel like myself again. Tried driving Magda a bit too.

Shopped for groceries, went to the P.O. & bank & then got on the ferry for Samothrace. Enjoyed our crossing as the morning grew more sunny, ate lunch at the swimming beach after landing & got a ride in a truck to the Xenia at the Sanctuary. Xenia is very nice. Hubdid a tour of the Sanc. for me & I got the lay of this part of the island. Plan to see the ~~the~~ Early X basilica near the ancient harbour tomorrow & was thrilled to find alot of X pieces outside the museum. The Xenia operator prepared a lovely dinner for us with fish!

Today was a really lovely day & Our Xenia host prepared us a lovely breakfast and then off we went along the coast rd. to find the early X basilica near the ancient harbour of Palaiopolis which Mrs. Lehman says was built to comm. St. Paul's visit. It is very small and where have all the pieces gone? Guard at Sanc. Mus. says all their ~~orig~~ X pieces outside come from Kamariotissa. Climbed up the slope above to the Genoese towers, which incorporated alot of blocks from the anc. city (& maybe the sanc.?). Photography very good there. Walked across the anc. city area, the W. wall for a while & ate lunch in the olive grove. Photographed some of the mosq. Carried out alot of travelling today & had some interesting experiences. Some friendly goats almost climbed over their fence as we patted them on the way along the waterfront to the ferry. The sight of a naval vessel in the harbour, with all the pretty fishing boats, was a bit jarring. A very nice ferry trip back to ~~Alexandroupolis~~ & it was fascinating to watch the Sanctuary & Palaiopolis area slip by as the ferry left the island. Shopped in Alex. & then set off for Turkey. At the border were asked to take a passenger to Istanbul. Very funny when it transpired close to Dr. that she was Greek & therefore she could talk. Traffic terrible coming in & were very glad to get settled in the Sözmen Hotel.

Oct 13/83 Istanbul

We accomplished a fair amount today but the on & off rain & drizzle, plus wind, made us feel cold & miserable quite alot. Found that the hotel gives a good breakfast which was a cheerful start to the day. Walked down our street to our old haunts ~~to the~~ of when Jon & Penelope were here & found a book store to buy a new book on Turkey. Proceeded to the Archaeological Museum which was freezing & did it up thoroughly. Nearly starved by then so went down the hill to a Turkish restaurant where we enjoyed a hot Turkish meal very much, checked at the post office but no mail. Then went to St. Irene & did the exhibition there quickly. Very well done & must go back to photograph. Poked around the ruins between Ag. Sophia area & our old hotel & discovered the Praetorion of Euphemia. Took a cab home & after a rest walked quite a long way to find supper.

Today was much better with sun + no rain. With great cunning Huh brought us to the two parts of the Chalcopratia which can still be seen. Found the excavated part of the Old Hagia Sophia facade as shown on my plan. H. very patiently helped me take a number of mosaics inside H. Sophia. The out of plumb parts of the bldg. are quite interesting. Both of us delighted to locate the Skeuophylakeion + had a look inside. Too late to get in S. Irene today so looked outside again enjoyed the palace park. Were very surprised to find wall paintings under cover at one side of S. Euphemia. Walked home + ended a good day with Turkish baclava.

Taxied quite a bit today which cut down on fatigue. First ride to railway station by circling the outside of seawalls was very interesting. Went to S. Went across the Galata bridge next - it & the harbour were a sea of activity. Was fascinated to see the boats with their catches of fish for sale. Saw the Musical Instrument collection & then taxied to H. Sophia. Walked to S. Serg. & Bachus & felt very strange & see a church converted to a mosque. Taxi home & a drink in the dining-room where view of city was fascinating as sun sank.

Finished up Istanbul today in fine style. Went to the Kariye first & examined the fascinating beautiful mosaics one by one, incredible no. of interesting stories told, frescoes very interesting too. Tried next for the Ibrahim Paşa but went to the mosque of that name which was wrong & in a very poor part of the old city. With help from several people located S John Stoudios & with more help got the gate opened for us. A family lives in a tiny ramshackle house in the courtyard now but ~~she~~ the woman agreed to let us in & photograph for a considerable fee! Our visit a bit rushed but we followed our plan at the apse end & found the chancel found. reused in the ~~apse~~ Moslem mihrab, a bit of the synthronon & the steps to the crypt. The pavement of the nave in various coloured stones forming an intricate pattern with figs (lambs? sheep? & others) was quite handsome. My feeling now about the fate of the early churches in Constantinople, destroyed, built into other bldgs, neglected, turned into mosques is rather a sad one. Christianity seems to have been almost wiped out in this part of the world where it made such a courageous but confident start. Lunch overlooking the Marmara was very nice. At the Military Mus. & Ethnological Exhibition were very lucky to see & hear a band playing ancient instruments. Were in time for the Crafts & Costumes which were lovely in their bright colours. Will be sorry to leave this fascinating city.

Alot of driving today till we just caught the ferry & crossed the Dardanelles. Were very glad to find a lovely big room & hot water at the Susan.

Today was another triumph! Went first to Cinik from where Fred seemed to have an uncanny inkling of where to head for Kara Dere, the nearest village to Mamurt Kale. Several enquiries necessary but after quite a long drive, the last part very rough, we were in the small, very narrow streeted, very simple village of Kara Dere. It was arranged we would go to the site on a tractor with 3 other men to help. The ride was terribly rough to start, then improved. Walk was pretty tiring but then in the oak forest were all the ancient blocks we wanted. Really weird to see them all jumbled under the trees. Men found alot of them. Everybody in the village so excited we had completed the trip & waved us a smiling Gule Gule. Wonderful lamb chops for dinner to celebrate at the Susan Bergama Overtime at the Jusan Bergama over we started for town with a stop at the Onyx factory. A very nice Turk told us a good deal about the stones we much enjoyed seeing the many things they make with it. Bought a gift for Mary. Went up to the Akropolis next to see the restoration of the Traianeum and the site generally for more pictures. Did some shopping and then off for Izmir with picnic lunch on the way. Air in Izmir slightly better than May '82 but it is terrible. Were delighted to get a lovely letter from Mary - she had a wonderful Thanksgiving. Camp ground closed so we found a simple motel & after a good fish dinner are having a quiet evening.

Today we scored on H's 3rd & final main aim for this trip - the T of Apollo at Klaros was dry!! Sacred well was full of water and the ground in the 2 sections of the cave was muddy but otherwise we could walk everywhere & see every block clearly. This is a peculiar situation. The T was destroyed by an earthquake but the parts preserved because the water level rose, the whole area was silted over so deeply the T disappeared completely - was not even noticed in ploughing. Ate where we could see Notion, now very dry. Tried for Izmir Mus. but its new location opens Nov. 1 so went to the Castro (Akropolis) park to view the city & then to Klazomenai where the remains of the ancient causeway & the island were very interesting. Nice dinner at our motel tonight.

Numerous parts of the city "before" & "after" the theatre could be seen clearly for our first time. (Up to eleven (inclus.) used at S. John's Basilica

We went first of all to the Basilica of St. John this a.m. where so much restoration has been done it is now a very impressive church. Alot to see so I took alot of pictures. Short visit next to the Artemision where it was all dry except the altar area. After lunch we set out for my first climb of the walls on Bulbul Dağı. They are very spectacular and a climb to just beyond the highest part was a spectacular achievement for me. It was a bit of a steepness to get onto the wall at first and then it was surprising how much there was to walk on. Some parts were scarey and others messed up with bushes so we walked along the ground inside the wall at times. View from the top was unbelievable going so far in all directions. A bit difficult to find a path down but we made it - What an achievement!

Our last day in Turkey was quite leisurely especially as we had a long wait in Cesme before the ferry. The hotel gave us a nice breakfast and then we set off to do errands in the town. It took a long time at the bank for them to give me a cash advance as my Visa Card is in Fred's name. I finally got it and then we could get our ferry tickets to Athens & some food. Started for the Nea Moni which we finally found along the new road. Met two very old nuns there, one giving us an explanation of the beautiful mosaics in the church & the other giving us oozo and cake in the library. Life looked spartan there but they were very friendly & welcoming. After eating our lunch outside their gate we set off to find Agios Isidoros & were taken to it by a man who summoned the woman with the key. More excavating had been done since that shown in my plan. It was fascinating to see what there was of 1st & 2nd church levels inside the present church. Also the burials of Isidoros & Myropi under the present church. Outside you could see clearly the outline of the 1st apse & the outline of the 2nd Frankish apse & its other foundations outside the present apse. The people who came into the church with us were very interested in our plans & information. We went on then to look for Agios Vasilios in the Public Park where there is also the statue of Kanaris. Came across it unexpectedly in a walled area with cypresses around. It seems that a later church (in the 15 or 16th?) was lined on top of the Early X church down & which you look & see vaulted areas through a series of holes in the floor of the later church. In the end we scored pretty well today but there were frustrations at times.

The antiquities custodian in Pyrgi took us to the church, along sev. streets & then accompanied us to Fana & Emporio & was most helpful & gracious. Not much to do after it became dark. Managed to keep warm & found supper & finally went aboard on the ferry for what may be a fairly rough passage to Athens

Oct. 28 Peiraeus & Athens

It took a long while to dock at Peiraeus as there seemed to be so many ships coming in. Off at last + started toward the School. Very surprised to see the streets so deserted. Guessed it might be Oxi Day + indeed it was. Students away on another trip so here we are once again rattling around almost alone in this big building on a quiet week-end.

God organized quickly this a.m. & took off for Corinth. Route we took through Athens terribly slow. It was drizzling but we started up the s.e. part of the city wall & followed it for some distance examining all the round excavated towers. From our topmost point we spotted the Basilica, drove to it next & realized it was indeed inside the Kenchriai Gate. It was a very large basilica, had several phases & seemed to be surrounded with burials. Looked up references which indicated this was an interesting part of the anc. city

Off again to Corinth where Fred took me straight to the Skoutela Bas. - uncanny. Very exciting to see it as it matches the plan exactly with the road running through it - hunched at top of Akro and then headed S. Think we spotted the Anagreia & were pleased to be going down the Argolic Gulf to P. Trow again where we were welcomed at the Apollo Hotel

Dec 8/83 Paralia Ieron - Astros - Kiveri - P. Ieron

The weather was not good today - drizzle, low clouds, rain & more of the same. However we examined the stream coming out of the hillside into the lake of Moustos, found our way to the very nice Astros Mus. with its numerous Roman pieces from Loukou Monastery, & examined the river of Loukou where it joins the sea. Biggest accomplishment was finding our way through the village of Kiveri to the Anigraia which takes off southward down the coast from there. Quite a thrill to walk part of it and we think we have figured out some more stretches of it. Glad to be at the Apollo Hotel again while the rain pours down outside.

Today looked better weatherwise when we got up & indeed it was. In fact there was so much sun we drove to Hellenika & up a side road to a tiny settlement of the same name. By climbing up above the road we had a wonderful view right across to Mountain Meligou & Ag. Ioannis. Parnon peeped out a bit from the clouds so we got pictures which was our main goal. Had lunch next by the water, Paralia Astros and then set off for the Anigraea. Started along the Hydraulic Pumping station where we first got onto the predecessor of the mod-rd. then followed the top of the ridge right up to Pritchett's tree & Sl. George shrine. Here the Anigraea passes. Followed it south a long way - till Tropygatho was not far off - and then seemed to lose it in an olive grove. Had to quit then but it really was a thrill to be walking on this route of very long usage. Walked back to Magda along the present asphalt except for taking the preceding route where it exists above the asphalt before & after the area of the pumping station. The sea is pounding in front of the Apollo tonight.

Our host & hostess bade us a cheery Καλό ταξίδι with a large bag of mandarins & oranges για το δρόμο. This time we went S. where people were outdoing interesting things in the sun. Cliffs around Neonidi very spectacular again. Went on to the Moni Elona & found obvious turn off to Ag. Basileos came before the ascent to the Monastery so we missed that bad part. Furthermore the road to Palaiohora was hard surfaced & the rest to Ag. Bas. not too bad so I needn't have worried about the road. It was simply beautiful up there with rolling fertile stretches going toward the rising heights of Parnon and one thought of how peaceful their isolated life must be. Returned to Neonidi & went up the coast to Astros, then up its gorge & so to Tegea & down to Sparta where Taygetos looks majestic all snowed covered at the top.

Feb. 22/84 Athens & Delphi

Got ourselves organized quickly this a.m. (after Steve's sumptuous "after tea talk" dinner last night) and set off via the National Rd for Delphi in order to see the almonds in bloom before it is too late. We soon noticed that there are flowering trees + shrubs here + there all along the way. It was really exciting, in its special way, to see fresh villages and countryside again and the mts, Kithaera, Elikon & Parnassus all snow covered looked progressively more spectacular as we advanced.

Took a side trip to Orchomenos to see the early Church of the Dormition at Skripou. It was fascinating because of the column drums of the early temple built into its walls + because of the numerous pieces of an earlier church (churches?, other bldg.?) used in carefully planned positions to give decorative effects. To add to the fascination other blocks ~~with~~ similar + the same decorative bands were lying together beside an adjacent bldg.

On to the Stiris Valley where we found beautiful almonds in abundance + then to the Pan Hotel in Delphi for a lovely night in this beautiful spot. Got two items each from the sticky man for desserts →

Today was very full + very interesting (+ a bit strenuous). Went to the War of Independence Heroon first (which they are repairing) and took a lot of pictures. It was very clear + sunny and the view all around was superb especially toward Erymanthos. The view along the valley + up to that Mt. was at once relaxing and yet overwhelming.

It was near lunch-time when we left some went next to the Massacre shrine where the view across Kalavryta with Erymanthos in the background was really spectacular. Ate our lunch beside the rd. as far as we could go up slopes of Cynaitha. The climb after leaving the car was really strenuous and we were glad to find a spot where we could scramble to the top over part of the Frankish wall. There really was a huge nearly level area on top for a refuge which had a very spectacular view. Quite tricky to get down but we managed & were very proud of what we had accomplished. Next went to Mega Spilion where we were invited in & I was given a shirt to wear. Saw the many treasures & the cave where the finding of the Icon is shown. The placement of the Monastery in front of the cave & against the cliffs is awesome. Second night in Kalavryta Pausanias sites & related modern villages came fairly quickly today as we investigated the valley to the south of Kalavryta. First we drove through the astonishing spruce forest again on some rough roads & then came to the Lousoi valley with Ano Lousoi first perched on some very peculiar & unstable looking slopes. Went across the valley & up first to Lousiako. Down a short distance then to Anc. Lousoi where we examined the church & sanctuary site thoroughly.

On down next through rugged terrain till we reached the valley of Kleitor. Mazeika or Kato Kleitoria is on the valley floor E of Anc. Kleitor which turned out to be a surprising site. It too is on the level with blocks & streets discernable in parallel lines through terraces at the edges. The wall area to the south was like a lovely park with smooth grassy slopes descending below the walls. It was beautiful all around & very relaxing. Lots of animals to see in Arcadia I would say.

After leaving the Hotel Marica we bought bread, some small gifts and found the Alpheus spring of Pausanius "2 furlongs from the town", as we started on the road & the M. Aq. havras.

Trees at top of the pass before Ano Lousoi were peppered with snow and today was much colder & drizzley at times. K. & A. Lousoi & the valley & Mazeika looking quite familiar now. Before Mazeika turned l. for Planytero where we saw the unbelievably copious springs which are the source of the Aroanias R. Streams seemed to emerge and rush along everywhere & the whole area had an incredible number of plane trees.

After Mazeika turned left, passed the Chelonospilia (W. of Ind.) monument, climbed the valley to Likouria & went way up high above it & the pass from which you descend to the Pheneos Plain. Drive down to the plain which was once a lake & now has only a small marsh which drains into the Katavothra was very sweeping & interesting. Having now seen where the water for the lake disappears into the ground I was anxious to photograph its emergence where the stream rushes out below Nikouria.

Drove on to Vitina & turned onto the Olympia road where we stopped first to see (on the left) Spring of Nymphasia (30 stades from Methydrion). Further on the highway goes right around the hill of Methydrion (a small village nearby now has the name) and a short distance further on we saw the small temple on the right.

There was a great deal of rain & cold today so we did quite a bit of driving & popped in & out of the car according to the weather. Went first to Nestane & examined the fallow Plain from below the village. The fast flowing stream disappearing into the katavothra was quite something. The anc. site on the hilltop above town is now a lovely park area.

Ate lunch on the Gourtsouli Hill & looked down on anc. Mantinea. The church on the hill has likely reused the walls of the ruined chapel mentioned by Fraser 12:7 p. 221. The ancient & early X pieces built in very interesting.

Next drove up to Kakouri to see the wonderful almonds there (but every town in these parts has amazing almond displays right now) & to be at the n. end of the Plain of Mantinea

Back down then to main junction near Skopi & then n. on main rd. to Nemithi where we turned e. & saw the fascinating Byz. church with frescoes inside & anc. & early X pieces built in outside. It is supposed to mark sanctuary of Artemis Hymnia see Frazer p. 223

There seems to be a new rd going through from Nestane to the Climax pass over the ridge above Sanga - hope they do not eliminate the zig zag path going clearly up the face of the ridge above Sanga. Turned off to Siniathes to get another good look at almonds. As a bonus I was able to pat a tethered goat! Weather really deteriorated at Orchomenos but glad we climbed the hill to the agora & very interesting theatre.

Overwhelming scenery today (after photo stop at Gourtsouli for Mantinea) as we headed for Kandyla (past Orchomenos) + over the staggering pass to the idyllic valley of Shotini. Round to valley of Stymphalus next + over another pass above Kastanea to Nosia overlooking Pheneos Plain + up to Matia (Katavothra). Saw the lake from the opp. side this time. Ended with hill of Pheneos + martyrs shrine + then started home. Noticed a katavothra at S.E. corner of L. Stymph as we climbed above it. Really a terrific day for scenery!!

We were almost completely loaded last night but had a few things to finish up this a.m. such as food, & Emile's. No mail which was disappointing but Mike's trip is now definitely on so hope Muff's is too. Air in Athens bad these days so glad a change is ahead. Busy scene at Peiraeus very impressive again - saw it all as we were the last car on since we get off at the first stop of Patmos. Very nice to have a nice long ride so we can relax. Not a great deal to see in the afternoon as it was very cloudy. Got chatting with a nice English boy sitting ahead of us who is keen on seeing Greece in his holiday periods. Were concerned about a hotel as they do not open till April 1 - however we were lucky in finding quite a nice one, the Rex, open & glad to see us, near the dock.

Invited our young English friend Cyprian to our room for breakfast which was quite a meal by the time he added some wonderful yogurt. Tried for our tickets to Rhodes but could not be sold one for the car till closer to boat time. Went up to the Monastery of St. John above Χώρα but it was nearly closing time. Drove around the island a bit and felt the scenery everywhere was of an indescribable beauty - very green fields, softly rounded hills with tinges of red tones in the green and beautiful blue inlets along the much denticulated coast. Headed back for the Monastery after lunch with a stop at the Apocalypse Convent to see the cave where S. John wrote & the little church built next to it. Saw only the courtyard of the Monastery as there was a funeral & the monks were gone. Could not see the library or treasure. Ate dinner out then had coffee twice before we said Goodbye to Cyprian. Very relieved when there was room for our car & we got on.

We had a really good sleep on the boat Ourpose were up in good time to have the ship's continental breakfast & watch Rhodes approach till it was time to get off. Found our way fairly easily to Charles' apartment and were made very welcome by his daughter who introduced us to everything we needed to know. Shopped for food, made lunch in the apt. kitchen & then had a good rest. Went out to see the city then & find Hub's restes. Very interesting to walk around the walled city and speculate on what life used to be like there. Really enjoyed cooking pork chops for dinner.

Woke to find it very windy but set off anyway not realizing what kind of weather was on the way. Went to Ialysos first where it was blowing very hard - anything put down had to be under a big rock. Was really fascinated to see that site again now I am so much more interested in what is there. You come to the baptistry right away & see easily that it utilized foundations of T of Athena Ialysia. Architect. bits of the church collected all around the area and numerous ones built into the rt hand monastery bldg. which is likely the episcopal villa added in 1939 by the Italians. The Knights built the original Ch of our Lady of Philerimos which was repaired by the Ital. in 1931, who added the belfry in 1939.

Found Hub's T of Apollo Erethimios in a hole in a field & could hardly walk there for the wind. Went on to Camiros where the wind was stronger than ever & made footing tricky. You had to fight against it. Went down the coast a bit further but turned back when rain increased & wind was incredible. Realized there was a real storm on; the a.m.'s ferry was still anchored on leeward side & there were several other boats. Waves along the harbour side really immense & obviously no one could dock. Nice visit with Susan & Antonios upstairs in the p.m.

Weather looked much more settled today so stopped first, then saw the archaeolog. mus. & then went to the Archaeol. Service to arrange to get into the area within the walls where they have been excav., so saw the H opening gateway (& its pavement) on the anc. street & the place where they ran the ships up on slips for repairs as the sea came in closer in antiquity. In afternoon set off to see basilicas. Found the Παναγίας της Καθολικής quickly now in a military zone, Guard said not allow photography - too bad as there was a real nice group to L. of door which included chancel pier, chancel screen pieces, and impost blocks. The 2 cols. remained on outside of one cross arm, other 3 had been removed. Could not find anything at Kolimbia. Found nothing at Χαράχι either but climbed the Castro Hill to see if church was up there. Quite a lot of the walls remain & we found the entrance ramp. What was a lovely surprise was the sight of yellow daisies in millions filling the whole hill top.

Went to Χαράκι first to photograph Hindos & lo & behold Bub spotted the location of the basilica to the left. There has been a lot of excav. done with several areas fenced off. Only 2 colonnettes & another frag. but a bit of mosaic pavement.

On to Hindos where the colour of everything was superb in the brilliant sunshine. Took pictures from all directions as the lists indicate and found the floor of the E.C. basilica near the harbour. Bought a beautiful tablecloth for us & a nice blouse & shirt for me. Hindos must be one of the most beautiful places in Greece!

Pushed on to the s. end of the island & were surprised to find they grows only wheat there. Rd. from Katavia down to the sand spit, which is the Isthmus quite agastic but we got all the way to Vroulia where the hillside location is certainly very spectacular. Not even any garbage it is so remote but there were numerous collections of potsherds made by the shepherds. Tried for the basilica at Katavia & prob found correct cemetery & church but church locked & rests likely inside. Same story at Messanagros where there were 3 imposts outside, other rests seen through windows were altered & the remains of basilica outer found. covered with a terrace. Phoned P. for her birthday & then went out for a nice dinner (fish for me!)

At Stellies the wildflowers were in profusion incl. anemones. Ate lunch + then set off to find the restes of Kimissala on + near the Hill of Agios Fokas. It really was amazing how Fred spotted the stretches of wall + got us to the top where the temple still exists in part. Mike's cold affliction, miraculously, seemed to be almost over today which was great. He drove all day around the Mani + across to Monemvasia + was faking so much better. Flowers in the Mani were lovely again. Road paved past Ippy Crags which was a big improvement. Drive to P. 2. + to the church a new experience for Mike. There seems to be a simple road to Taenaron now! Great to see the Mani + its towers again. On reaching Moreas checked in to the Hotel Minoa + then did circuit of Epidaurus himera.

We had a lovely tour around the upper & pt. of lower town of Monemvasia this a.m. Mike enjoyed it very much. Went to Kastal Molai next & then headed northward on our way to Mari & the sea. Road very bumpy & Mike found the driving a bit tricky. It was a long way, but interesting and eventually we come to Poulithra & Leonidio. Went up as far as Elani so Mike could see it, which he found unbelievable. Staying at the Apollo Hotel in Paralia Feron again - we are well known here now!

Today we got the bad weather although there was a long enough break to visit the Agneton Wed. at the Paralia Astros. Rain resumed with a thunderstorm arriving which produced a terrific flash & clap as we went into Astros store. Took Mike to houkou where once again we were very hospitably treated. Showed Mike the scenery up the coast but it was too wet to do anything outside so came home in good time to shake dinner.

Had a wonderful day to end our trip with Mike. Blue sky to start the day and it was warm & mostly sunny all day. Tried the second of the Aniprasa again & did much better than last time. Did not lose the path on the first shoulder as we did last fall and kept on it at the upper end for much longer than we did last fall. Mike really enjoyed the excursion very much as we thought he would. Made our lunch in the Loukou parking lot & then went up the Astros gorge through Tripolis & up to Nestane so Mike could see the Katavothra. He thought it was "really something else". Came down the incredible Arcadia descent road & up to the Isthmia Motel for the night. Made dinner & then Mike took us out for a very nice dessert & chat. This has been a lovely trip!

Today was May Day, the first one we have ever experienced, having on holiday, so made our own breakfast, packed up & collected Muff. Terrible traffic having Athens due to the parade but later we really enjoyed the spirit of the day with flowers decorating every car & people having picnics. Bought wreaths from delighted children then tried the Spilotaki road which did not go to Kato Doliana. Showed Muff all the points of interest down to P. Tirou where we were welcomed again by our genial host. Had a nice walk along the waterfront & are delighted at how much Muff is enjoying all she is seeing in Greece Took Muff to see plane trees at Karies then on to Geraki to see one of the churches. Came to ~~Molai~~ Monemvasia for the night & had a nice dinner out.

Glad to find the Apollo hotel had rooms for us again. lunch in the shade near the top of Mistra Hill & then Muff & I went in; I did my best to make it an interesting tour of as many churches as possible. But it is a big very tiring site. Taygetos still looks great with a lot of snow left. We feel very pleased that Muff's travels in Greece are going so well.

Very nice stop at Nestane where several men were very anxious to welcome us to their village. Biggest thrill of all was Kevidhi where children in local costumes were doing folk dances. Absolutely charming +

Finished packing after breakfast - seemed to be a bit short of energy for preparing for our next trip. Drove for a while stopping at Thermopylae. Felt really upset on realizing I had left my $600.00 of traveller's cheques in Athens! Early remains at Nea Anchialos are very plentiful especially at the new church they are excavating! Got to Macrinitsa to find Fred had left the deposit slip in Athens! Are staying at the Thessali anyway which is a fascinating old Turkish large house. Had a nice dinner at the plane shaded platea where some kids were dancing - you could look down to Nea Volos.

Our stay at the restored Turkish house of Mousli grew more fascinating & ended very enjoyably this a.m. Our floor had a series of bedrooms entered through long, carved wooden doors on 2 sides of a landing & the wooden stairway & deep windows on the 2 others. Our room was huge with 2 big double beds with wooden frames built into wood panelled corners of the room & a fireplace. Wood was used everywhere, floors, window sills deep enough to sit in, ceiling beams of both floors, roof structure of upper floor, carved doors. Lace type curtains hung in all the windows. On the upper floor you had a large very Turkish style sitting room separated off from rest of the floor & projecting in part beyond wall of the house which increased space (this is no. 5). There was also a smaller sitting room with with a fireplace and several bedrooms with low ∩ pointed shape & carved doors as on lower floor. del areas extending beyond the central "landing" area at the top of the stairs.

Had our second lovely breakfast at the Hotel Egnatia & then returned to Philippi where we climbed the hill above the theatre till we had a wonderful view down over the 3 churches and the forum. Discovered there was another church near the museum and then went to investigate Lydia's baptistry. It is a lovely hexagonal church much used as a baptistry apparently as a lot of people were leaving after a service. Some ancient blocks in the river nearby are thought to be where Lydia was baptized. Next stop was the Castro at Kavalla where we could look down on the oldest part of the city. Set off to drive to Alexandroupolis where we decided to stay at the Egnatia Motel there as I have a sore throat.

May 21/84 Alexandroupolis - Istanbul

Had several things ready to mail as we left our last Greek city. There was a lot of driving today through vast stretches of wheat fields. Interesting to see the Turkish scene reappear - domes, minarets, kerchiefs, horses etc. Heard a meadowlark at noon! Traffic got extremely heavy as we neared Istanbul. In it the traffic & people were so appalling I felt really turned off about this city. However once installed at the Sözmen we relaxed & feel more enthused now.

Today turned out really well, much better than expected when we seemed to be exposed to too much sun to start the day. Went to the Hilton, American Express & the Tourist Office to get my travellers cheques replaced & enquire about ferries to Heslos. Traffic was terrible so returned car to hotel & took taxis. I saw S. Sophia myself & all the pieces in the garden and then Fred & I walked around part of the walls and went into the Blue Mosque. Lahmajun, shish kebap, tea, chocolate dessert were all Turkish food we enjoyed.

May 23/84 Istanbul - Ankara

Drove the above today which took ages due to a long traffic tie-up at Izmit & a terrible, long, dusty detour before Ankara. Nice lunch at Izmit. Very tired when we got to the pre Ankara motel but got a wonderful dinner for 2 for $8.00!

School kids very eager. Conversion of the T. of Aug. seems to have included adding a square apse addition at one end, putting in windows, adding a [cross] on one side of interior + ☧ on other. Very glad to come home after the museum + a late lunch, as the air is really bothering me + I have a running oozing eye.

A long drive over the steppe, some used only for grazing but part irrigated too. It seemed to get drier + dustier in Karaheir + Ürgüp but at last, with the help of Oliver + Judy's tourist friend we had hotels for both nights, a genuine Turkish carpet + a very good dinner.

First & last had best mosaics. Got the caretaker & let us into Tokali Kilise which was very large & had a lot of stories depicted. Further down the road saw Carikin Ch. It was a strange & fascinating experience to see so many of these rock cut churches where so much art is still visible. The Han was fascinating too & going to Zelve saw some very weird landscape. The drive to see Ercyas Dağ was well worth it - that mountain (still snow-covered) is a remarkably beautiful old volcano

We did alot of driving today with great changes of scenery. The underground city at Derinkuyuk was as clever and unbelievable as they say. We're very lucky to have a guide explain it all to us. It was rather tiring to scramble through all those passages. Drive westward took us past numerous volcanic areas, the flat steppe, mountains with snow, two lakes, great wheat areas, lovely rolling grey & russet hills. Very glad to find a hotel at Egridir as we had really had enough for today.

Very surprised when two boys came over the mountain top above the site. Nice lunch in a pine park and then lots more driving through varying kinds of farm land - a great deal of it wheat! Fields of poppies very interesting with mauve or white flowers. Poppy seeds or opium? Had a nice dip in the Roman baths & then a nice dinner at the first motel built at Pamukkale.

Were sorry to leave the very nice Halaca Motel where they have alot of carpets on the walls, flowers in the garden, frogs nearby (& regrettably an outdoor movie). Stopped briefly at Mylasa, went from Söke to Kusadasi & to the Susak at Ephesus. Had time this afternoon to visit St. Mary's (Council) Church & then made the excursion over to St. Paul's Prison which is really a four chambered tower of the fortification circuit & joined to it by an outrunner wall. Fascinating to view Ephesus from the tower which enables you to see the Arkadiane & Kouretes Sts. very well and the Harbour & its approach channel perfectly.

We went to the 9.00 a.m. Communion Service at St. Paul's for Trinity Sunday, the last time we shall see the Peake's before we leave Greece this time. We grow more & more fond of St. Paul's & will miss it very much indeed. Only a few cars or motorcycles around today with flags & horns blowing, a blessed relief after the past several days of really intense, nerve-racking noise. We will never forget this election! Barreled into the packing again after church and really had the back of it broken by the time we had to be ready for Crete and set off for the ferry. We boarded the Kandia with remarkable ease and have a very luxurious cabin on this lovely boat. It is sure to be a last relaxing, pleasant trip before us before we are westward bound!

Sad to say "Goodbye" to Kalavryta for the last time - such a nice little town & so very peaceful now. It was a lovely a.m. with clear exhilerating air (so welcome!) so we had a lovely drive down to Patras where it was very hot. Visited the two churches & spring of S. Andrew & learned some more about him, the Protokleit. A few items MM to look after at the dock area, then dinner (real Greek recipes & rather expensive) and then a long wait to get on the El Greco. We have a deluxe cabin which is wonderfully spacious & attractive. Should certainly be able to relax.

The El Greco docked at Igoumenitsa for a long time after breakfast so we had a good chance to observe the Greek scene for the last time. I felt a ~~sad~~ mixture of sad feelings to pull away finally from our long stay in Greece - the kind people at the School especially the maids Sophia + Maria, all the things I had hoped to achieve and didn't quite manage, the incomplete stage of our Pausanias project, the big changes and undertakings ahead over Mary's marriage. Oh well! I must hang on to the good parts of the year, forget the not so good parts and go on positively from here to use what was good + positive in the best possible way in the future.

It was very pleasant + helpful to be able to relax so much today in our comfortable cabin as we (I for sure) are certainly tired after the ordeal of packing up our too many belongings in a hurry, in the heat of Athens in June.

Lots of people seem to have spent the entire day roasting in the sun on one of the decks - they are turning very brown but we have been very happy to keep out of the sun! Dinner tonight was a sumptuous meal!

Fortunately there was breakfast on the El Greco as it was a long procedure to get off at Ancona. Once off + with travellers cheques cashed we seemed to have jumped some sort of hurdles and relax more. I have really enjoyed the rest of the day - the very productive progress past Italy we came through the wonderful assortment of food available at the Self Service on the highway near Rimini at lunchtime, the old world atmosphere of Ravenna as we found the Centrale-Byron Hotel. After an unbelievable helping of ice cream we went to see S. Appol. Nuovo, S. Giovanni Evangelista Palace of Theodoric, Baptistry of the Aryans. The streets are so quiet you can really enjoy strolling. Had a nice pizza supper to finish off a very nice day.

Headed off first for Bologna where with some difficulty we got ourselves into the old world Italian part of the old city & to the Museo Civico to see the Bologna Head (copy of the Athena Lemnia by Pheidias. She is indeed very lovely! Drove part way back to Ravenna where we visited the Ch. of S. Vitale, Maus. of Galla Placidia, the Duomo & Baptistry of the Orthodox (beside the last). Mosaics in first 2 are wonderful, espec. G. P.'s blue. Split pattern stone facing in S. Vit. shows one of nature's masterpieces - much more colourful than S. Sophia. Really had a good day & will end it (after making our supper) with another wonderful gelati.

We left Ravenna with the feeling it is a lovely quiet place to visit. Lots of driving through very productive Italian countryside today, across the Po & Adige Rivers. Had a nice visit in the Basilica of S. Anthony in Padua where his tomb seems to be a healing centre. Gatta, is in front. A workman in S. Anth. invited us in the choir to see Donatello's work. Frescoes by Giotto in Arena chapel very lovely - unfortunately no slide sets left. Drive fr. Verona to Bolzano up a spectacular valley & it started to rain! Drive up to Innsbruck was very scenic although it got decidedly chillier as a rain storm started. We got really cooled off! When we sat down for a snack in the very scenic old part of Innsbruck we sat in the sun! It was a lovely old city to stroll through. Only problem was that the car developped the jerks on the way home to Bolzano.

July 4/84 Bolzano to Munich took the car to a garage this a.m. but disappointingly they did not get the jerks stopped. So came to Munich by the Kufstein route which we knew from last summer instead of by Garmisch. Luba Elein + Jane Walk were at the Hicke's also tonight so we were a sizeable Toronto group.

Had a chance to really appreciate the beauty and charm of the Hanauer Hof when we went down for breakfast. The decor in the breakfast room + everywhere really is so lovingly put together you are really spellbound.

Interesting to feel we had crossed into one more country, France at Strasbourg and could soon see we were surrounded by the lilting French voices. Visited the Cathedral where a large service was in progress. Many visitors outside and much of the facade in scaffolding. Style of the old bldgs. very interesting with their high roofs with windows all the way up.

12:15 after lunch Magda stopped completely!! Nothing for it but for me to use the SOS phone to summon a tow truck. Driver was most helpful in showing us the VW garage, the Poste Pergalo hotel and had to tow Magda the last 300 m as her restart on the highway was only temporary. Had a good French dinner to revive ourselves we were so exhausted + frustrated by the time we were settled at the hotel. Had blasted, mule head of a Munich VW mechanic who said all we needed were new spark plugs! The towing man discovered it was the ignition coil when he burned his fingers on it because it was for too hot!

Made our own breakfast at the Poste Bergda & set off for the VW garage praying Magda would make it that far. She did & people there were very helpful & phoned the touring man to confirm that the problem was in the ignition coil. So they put in a new bobine d'allumage & Magda seemed to go along fine for the rest of the day. Decided to stay at the Arcade Hotel at the Charles de Gaulle airport & go in to Paris by train. Made our first trip in right away as the hotel is open today. The nervous strain of driving with Magda's uncertain condition showed up in very obvious fatigue for Fred on the trip to the hotel. It has been a shame we had that car problem but all should be better tomorrow.

July 11/84 Paris to Rouen

Would you believe it! we had another day of worry with Magda! Started off O.K. from the Arcade but after a half hour or more of slow "circulation" on the peripherique, she was jerking as we exited for Rouen & Chartres. By now we felt so uncertain of how long she would last that we gave up our lovely plan of including Chartres & hoped we could make it to Rouen where it is arranged we turn Magda over to a driver tomorrow to take to Paris for shipping home. We did reach Rouen, with considerable jerking & bucking on hills, & were very grateful to be greeted at the Hotel de la Cathedrale & to have Madame phone the VW garage about seeing Magda tomorrow. So we got our tickets for the train-boat trip Rouen - Dieppe - Newhaven - London for Friday and then started to look for dinner. Found a lovely place in the Vieux Marché where the 4 course meals we chose were delicious. Fried mussels for my hors d'oeuvre which were delicious although I discovered later (to my embarrassment) that I had not known how to eat them in the proper way. Will know now for the future!

After a nice continental breakfast in our Hotel de la Cathedrale we took Magda to the VW garage where they were very courteous but could find nothing amiss with Magda even after driving her twice for a total of 30 km. What a mystery! but anyway we felt we had done all we could before turning her over to the chauffeur at noon to go to Paris for shipping to Canada. In the afternoon we had a lovely time exploring some of the fascinating streets with old half timber buildings.

This is a fascinating city wherever you turn! Had another wonderful French dinner - fruits de mer (largely snails & shrimp) Truite meunière duck, salad & black-current sorbet - across from the new church in the Vieux Marché to Jeanne d'Arc. Were very sorry to leave the charming Hôtel de la Cathédrale where the French people have been so charming. Took all our stuff to the station & then set off for a last explore. Went first to the Vieux Marché which is so clean, picturesque and Old World like. Had a rather swift climb up the Beffroi and a short look out from the top as unfortunately it was starting to rain very smartly. Just time to walk back to the station & get on the French train for Dieppe. Very glad to find enough space for the 6 pieces of luggage we were still carrying. On next to the ferry at Dieppe and a very crowded crossing to England. Lots of young people seemed to be having an excursion. Getting off was hectic but getting on the English train OK & we had a nice relaxing ride to London. It is obvious it gives Fred some great inner satisfaction to be in London again. Expect I will enjoy it very much too when I am more rested esp. The mail contained a Special Delivery from Mary saying Madge had had a spell in hospital and she was having to cope with a lot. Jane's upcoming visit, trying to do a lot at the lake, the wedding & too much work undertaken by Mary seemed to have her pretty uptight so it was a rather unpleasant letter in spots. Will have to phone tomorrow and try to improve matters in the problem areas.

About 6.00 p.m. we phoned Gr/hurst & I was relieved to have Madge answer & sound fairly well. Packed up our things at Greystones & taxied them to the Station to go to Edinburgh after lunch. This gave us the rest of the a.m. to visit the Minster & St Holy Trinity, Gooderam Gate - the very old church Jon first took us to. The train ride to Edinburgh was very enjoyable & took us close to the North Sea at times, England is flatter than I realized. Our night at the Mount Royal Hotel in Edinburgh will be a treat in luxurious surroundings - even tea ready to make! After settling we went out for our first walk along the Royal Mile where the old buildings are very impressive. A bite of lunch at a pub on the Royal Mile & then took over heavy ~~too much~~ baggage to the bus station to join the Scottish Highlands tour. Our route was Stirling (past Br. of Allen & Dunblane), Callander, Inchcaunoch (Trossachs), Glencoe (it was sunny which is unusual), Fort William. Our driver is an energetic, humourous Scotswoman & I'm sure we will love this trip. It is so nice to relax & have someone else drive!

It was a long drive to finish up today but again more beautiful mountain scenery & Loch Lomond was beautiful & very popular. Very interesting to see how suddenly the Highlands change to very flat terrain near Glasgow. This tour has been a wonderful idea & has given us a good many positive ideas for the future. Obviously lots of other older people travel around & enjoy each others company without the kids and we must look forward to and enjoy our years of being just us two and all the benefits which can come at this time. July 23/84 - Peterborough to Hill Farm, Suffolk

Had a nice breakfast at the hotel (chippers for me!) and then walked over to see Peterborough Cathedral. Saw my first fan vaulting there & enjoyed walking around it all. They had alot of nice books for sale.

Then we took the train to Ely where James met us & had a nice picnic lunch packed by his mother for us to eat. Very nice to see him & he hasn't changed at all. He took us to see the Cathedral where someone was doing a rubbing of one of the few remaining brasses in England. On the way to Woodbridge we went through Cambridge where we visited a lovely very old Church of the Holy Sepulchre and King's College Chapel with its fan vaulted ceiling.

Were given a warm welcome by Shirley and Keith Burch at Hill Farm where they live in a fascinating 3 centuries or more old half timber Suffolk farm house which they have altered & improved a great deal. James' godfather & his wife came in the evening & will be coming to the wedding.

This a.m James took us to visit Saxtead Green Mill, an ingenious mediaeval windmill which turns to face the wind. Very complicated inside & you go up several lots of steps to see it all. On then to what is left of Framlingham Castle with the Poor House now standing where the Great Hall had been. The countryside in all this driving is lovely to see - rolling fields of grain with a good many trees and innumerable narrow winding roads.

Keith's father was at Hill Farm for lunch - a dear old gentleman of 89. After lunch James took us to the Sutton Hoo ship burial excavations where a nice young girl explained everything to us. Also went to see Orford Castle, Benjamin Britain music hall, and had a glimpse of the North Sea.

High tea for supper & then a tour of the farm & an inspection of the newest litter of pigs which were born last night, just in time for me to have a play with them. Big excitement this evening when Shirley remembered that Poslingford is in Suffolk & their looks spoke of William Leonard Settaly as rector there. They had quite a lot of info. so we go there tomorrow completely amazed that this find should have fallen into our laps.

James, bless him! did find the complicated route to Poslingford & despatched the church right away, just as the books described it. James got the key & it certainly was the right church with a grave slab near the church door with C R S 1871 on one side & W L S 1875 on the other. On the end interior wall was a plaque erected in mem of Catherine Rebecca Suttaby etc & the lower part filled in for William Leonard after his death. There was also a list of the rectors, beginning in 1312, with Uncle William's 37 year ministery in its place. Will have to go back to visit the Old Vicarage but today was enough of a reward for one occasion.

On the way back went through Lavenham, a lovely town which has kept its Mediaeval appearance & a great many of its remarkable half timber buildings.

Another nice meal where Shirley excels and some wedding plans discussed before James took us to the train at Ipswich which took us to London, the last time we have to carry all those heavy pieces pieces of luggage! Got unpacked & organized for bed & lovely two weeks here,

Aug 5 London

Started today by going to the 8:00 a.m. Comm. service at St. Pancras Ch. Woburn Place from the Faistock. It is a most interesting church with its copying of details from numerous classical buildings. It is from this church that we hear the lovely bells chime the time. The church is one of the oldest buildings in the area & is dedicated to Pancratius, the young Roman boy who was martyred here in 304 under Diocletian, likely one of the earliest martyrs in England.

After lunch we set off on a most rewarding and thrilling visit to Edmonton by train. Church St. took off right from the station & very soon we found All Saints church, just as it was in the book I read in the B. Mus. Walked around to the south of it & there near the door was the very tomb stone of the Chappells which Charles Chappell had sent to Gt Hurst, with another Chappell tombstone ~~found~~ close by. Was copying these when Fred reported he had found another Chappell tombstone which was really the one we wanted of my great grandparents (& her name was Mary) & their daughter Fanny Jane about whom Charles Chappell had written. This last find was terrific. Ate our lunch in the sun on a cemetery bench & felt we were really visiting my grandmother & her family. Walked along Bury Street but could find nothing to correspond to the picture we had fr. Gt Hurst. As we boarded the train to leave (& it seemed to remain a few extra minutes!) the bells from all Saints were pealing, just as Hamish Maria & her parents heard them, and seemed to be bidding a most fond & lovely farewell. What a lovely day!

Took a break this a.m. to complete my picture taking at the Br. Mus. In the aft. & evening worked on my part of Mus. in our hotel room where I can have lots of fresh air. Fred did not find ~~too~~ much fault with my writing when I read it to him so as he never hands out praise, I guess it can't be too bad.

Thurs. Aug 9/84 London

Finished what I am doing of Pausanias today & had a great time tonight at the hilariously funny play called "Daisy Pulls it Off"

Fri Aug 10/84 London

Spent a long a.m. at the Public Records Office & a related office looking up info on the Suttaways - it was just fascinating & so easy to find. Fred is working amazingly hard at the B U M - he really loves the place. I am getting so excited (packing is under way) about going home I can hardly contain myself.

Sat. Aug 11/84 London

Sat the packing really wrapped up so could go to Lee & his wife's for a lovely lunch - had a really good visit with them & then had a lovely stroll in part of Regent's Park to end our London visit. was this the a.m. we went to Westminster for pictures & saw church ?

Sun. Aug 12/84 London - Toronto

Our last day of the Sabbatical year! Started with the early service at St. Pancras & then our last English breakfast at the Jamstock. Great & he all packed in good time so away we went in a cab to Heathrow where Glenys & Judy met us with a big KaRoTaGiDi banner. Had a lovely last chat with them over lunch at the airport & then had to bid them a fond farewell. Flight home was very pleasant. A good rest before the terrific excitement of reaching good old TO. Took a long while to get our bags off the carousel but at last we were hugging & kissing each other. Jon, Colin & Penelope were waiting at 164 & James was manning a position elsewhere but eventually everyone was together at home so we could have supper together, give out the homecoming presents we had brought and talk & talk & talk. No words could adequately describe today - a unique one in our ~~life~~ life together!!

Food Ideas

Orektika - Greek ones - melitsana salata, taramou-salata, tsatziki (Gk. one very smooth with only finely chopped + drained cucumber added + garlic). (Turkish one has shredded cucumber sometimes, another good one had tiny cubes of cuc. + green + red peppers) Other flavours - dill? alot of garlic

Turks use alot of parsley and in some dishes many other tasty herbs. Turks also make their dishes look very attractive by adding colourful bits of vegetable eg. green pepper, tomatoe sections, parsley sprigs or chopped small, water cress, green onion

Greeks make a nice lettuce salad by cutting it crosswise fine, adding green onion + alot of dill. Dressing of vinegar or lemon juice, but often too much oil

Gk. dessert that is delicious - thick yogurt with honey + walnuts added. Walnuts are a good addition to ice cream, apple pie.

Gk. roasted chicken breasts delicious.

Finger food dinner ideas - beef sliced thinly from eye of round steak roast, ham sliced thinly from small good round ham (boneless), cubes of cooked chicken, Shepherd salad all eaten off toothpicks, olives, various dips with veg. pieces.

For Another European Trip

1. In general dress a little more up to date, less like a student & more like a Greek.

2. Bring one, or better two, good woolen suits, under whose jackets a sweater can be worn, thus eliminating a coat often through the winter period.

3. Concentrate more on suits in summer as well as winter. A summer weight jacket that has one or two skirts to co-ordinate plus sleeveless, short sleeved, long sleeved blouses and a light sweater will provide great variety & take care of cooler temps in early a.m. & p.m.

4. Be careful in wearing pants - don't wear too often, have a flattering fit & don't wear too much in Greek villages. Knee socks with skirts quite all right in Gk. villages.

5. Buy combined hike hiking & track boots, have good walking shoes & non-skid dress shoes.

6. Bring thermometer, ~~sink~~ plugs, calendars, earplugs, stapler, flash light, paper clips, alarm clocks, cook book, family pictures

7 Have a roomy jacket, smooth lining, water proof & with a hood if possible, zippered, under which a sweater or 2 could go.

8 Have one of the new long light weight rain coats which are pretty & goover everything, including a long coat.

9. Bring a large heavy cardigan (dark in colour) which can interchange with jackets

10. Culottes (down to the knee at least) very practical & attractive for summer - knee socks with them would protect stockings.

11 Loose fitting (no waistline) sun type dresses would be the coolest way of all to dress in hot weather.

Bring alot less another time than you did in 83/84, especially in the clothes dept. Don't bring any tenting equipment and streamline everything. A propos of above - do not bring big queen duffle bag again or yellow suitcase but instead buy 2 fairly small suitcases or bags of some kind suitable for taking a small reasonable number of things on short trips. eg. a suitcase which opens into 2 halves & one comes over empty + perhaps a flexible type one which expands as the green duffle bag did.

Thoughts Following 1983-84 Sabbatical

Endeavour to be independent in all reasonable ways - have your own opinions & make your own decisions about things, do things alone or with other people not always as a couple, take on as many business arrangements as possible, make a firm contribution to decision making about new & continuing ventures, be enthused about trying new things

Build up your self confidence in the above ways and by:- affirming "I can" constantly in all reasonable situations, projecting the "I can" attitude when with other people, offer to do "I can" things for people such as give slide talks, take on reasonable jobs to assist other people, plunge into new situations with new people, look forward to things "I can" do rather than dwell on past occasions when I did not do as well as I might have.

Follow my fivepoint New Year's resolutions

Be inspired by the thought that life is a constant interesting adventure whose challenges, even if seemingly overwhelming, can be met.

Take measures to avoid loneliness (one of life's downfalls constantly in wait) by thinking of others first & self last, being involved with other people especially in a "talking" way, looking for things to do for others, making new friends, making our home the centre of more ~~relaxed get~~ social occasions and relaxed get-togethers. Don't think about being lonely.

Take the initiative in carrying out all the above yourself – don't expect anyone else to provide the initiative or even give you much support, but stick to your guns. And don't be discouraged by occasions when people seem to put you down (probably they don't mean it) – try to develop a much thicker skin and be positive all the time.

Work hard on Greek before coming again to Greece especially on asking directions & determine to ask all necessary ones yourself.

Realize that you are in the archaeological field for life so keep up on current literature, & maintain & develop friends in the field. Doing this as well as possible will be much more satisfactory than doing a half way job.
